The Power of Possibility: How IDRA and its Partners are Changing Public Education

IDRA's latest annual report shares stories, models and accomplishments in our work to strengthen public education to work for all children. Together, IDRA and its partners are improving education across the spectrum from prekindergarten to higher education, fostering family-community-school leadership and partnerships, addressing inequalities and barriers in education policy and practice, and producing innovative solutions that produce better results for children. This work is made possible through the generous support and commitment of funders and partners.

Join Univision Contigo during its Children's Action Month!

During the month of April, Univision will be encouraging parents to pledge to dedicate at least 15 minutes a day interacting with their children in order to develop the vocabulary and skills that will prepare them to be successful in school and in their lives.

Help us get the word out and ask parents to take the pledge at univisioncontigo.com and discover why 15 minutes are worth a million!

The Intercultural Development Research Association is an independent private non-profit organization dedicated to realizing the right of every child to a quality education. IDRA strengthens and transforms public education by providing dynamic training; useful research, evaluation, and frameworks for action; timely policy analyses; and innovative materials and programs.

IDRA works hand-in-hand with hundreds of thousands of educators and families each year in communities and classrooms around the country. All our work rests on an unwavering commitment to creating self-renewing schools that value and promote the success of students of all backgrounds.

We are a small organization with a powerful mission: to create schools that work for all children.
